Consumers Credit Union Hosts FREE Seminar: "Boomerang Retirement"

Public invited to no-cost educational seminar Wednesday, February 13, 2008

Waukegan, IL, January 8, 2008: Consumers Credit Union's 2008 seminar series begins this month with "Boomerang Retirement." The no-cost seminar is open to the public on Wednesday, February 13, at the Ramada Inn-Waukegan. Those attending the seminar will learn the newest information about preparing for retirement. . . and making the most of your money.

"401Ks, pension plans, Medicare, and Social Security are all a big part of today's society," said Sean M. Rathjen, President of Consumers Credit Union. "Many people are often confused with their array of choices and may not know which may benefit them the most. At a time when most people should be enjoying their retirement, they are stuck trying to figure out how to make their money work for them."

"Boomerang Retirement" will show you how the investment decision we make today can dramatically affect our futures. The seminar will focus on longevity, the impact of outliving your money, and inflation; Are the dollars I am saving today keeping pace with the annual cost of what I'm saving for? Beyond that, it will explore taxes and healthcare. Am I giving too much away to Uncle Sam today, unnecessarily? Or, how will I fund a Long Care need? If these are questions that you ask yourself, please sign-up for the FREE seminar today. The seminar is presented by Tom Davia of Transamerica Financial
